

Meeting, 8. November 2019

- Wikipedia Meetup
  - Contacting organizers of Wiki-thons; some have experience with biographies of female researchers and what kind of issues did they run into
  - Maybe we can reach out to the editor of an area; contact them, tell them what we want to do
- Build up credibility
  - Spelling correction
  - Minor issues
  - Maybe try to publish an article with credible account and without
- Contact professors
- Create repo with information
  - Make information available! e.g. Github/Gist? Github Pages?
  - Send link to professors
- Write into Wikipedia article
- Interview will probably not be enough
- How to turn reliable information into citable information?
- How to store communication/discussion with editors/contributor?
  - Can we export them directly from Wikipedia with little effort?
  - Can we export them into statistics?
    - Proposed, accepted, rejected
- Do we use one account or multiple? One would be good for credibility; multiple if we run into IP-address issues
- We will use 2x2 teams to parallelize work, however, still do collaboration
- Internal review and feedback before we publish
- Update proposal on responsibility-distribution, milestones, communication, how we meet up, technical constraints/stuff, etc. (until next 2 weeks)
  - 2-page proposal
- Different culture in german/english Wikipedia? Apparently there is!
  - Maybe it is easier to publish it in english Wikipedia
- We need pictures in CreativeCommons
  - Take it ourselves; ask them what picture they want published
- We can always email our professors about questions!
- In the next meeting we should have at least tried/failed/published a biography
  - Ca. 1000 words
